

Card Sorting

Card sorting is a user research method used to understand how people categorize and organize information. Participants are asked to group labeled cards into categories that make sense to them, which helps designers create intuitive information architectures and navigation systems.

